

Understanding Whiteness: Intent vs. Impact

Friday, March 6, 2020 ♦ 9:00 AM – 4:00 PM

2000 Embarcadero Cove Ste 400 ♦ Gail Steele Room, Oakland, CA 94606 ♦ NO COST

In this full-day interactive workshop, participants will interrogate how whiteness shapes how they understand their role and their relationship to their organization, colleagues, and clients.

In order to produce more culturally affirming outcomes, attendees will:

- Interrogate how characteristics of whiteness manifest in their personal and professional spheres, regardless of conscious intention.
- Engage in partnered dialogue using a mindful communication approach.
- Identify three common detours that prevent them from anti-racist action and set intentions to navigate these detours.
- Work collaboratively to develop three approaches to combat white supremacy culture within their professional practice.

Gretchen Baglyos brings more than 12-years of experience in education, and using the arts & music as a vehicle to addressing and expanding awareness of racial equity in schools and providing site-based professional development.

Alexander ("Alex") Harp serves on the Superintendent's Equity Cabinet, while facilitating monthly District Leadership Team racial equity meetings and coaching principals around their impact on race, positionality and patriarchy.
